SCIENCE SEEKS FOR VITAMINES

Elusive Substance Gives Zest and Real Value to the Food We Eat.

FLEES THE TABLE D'HOTES

Scientists Concentrate on Separating It From Viands, but Without Success—Differ as to What a Vitamine Really Is.

New York.—Food values are of especial interest these days of high prices. One dines at, say, a restaurant in New York city's "Latin Quarter," famed for its atmosphere but uncertain as to cooking. The food is mentioned casually on the menu in several languages—but the chicken is tasteless, the potatoes boring and the salad disappointing. However, one is hungry and eats largely. An hour later, the pangs of hunger again make themselves felt. One finally resorts to the home icebox and partakes of some humble bread and butter and milk, and that indefinable lack is satisfied.

The reason for this state of affairs is not far to seek. Vitamines! At such places the food is deficient in these intangible and microscopic substances, which scientists have proved are essential to nutrition and which are to be found in a large number of properly prepared foods but are destroyed by excessive heat, drying or other methods of preservation often employed for economy or convenience. The mystery of the vitamines is, therefore, of vital interest, as its name implies, to the world at large.

What is a Vitamine? This question is still perplexing chemists, according to a recent article by D. Atherton Seldell of the public health service, in the current number of the Journal of Industrial and Engineering Chemistry. These elusive substances have been found necessary not only as dietary factors but even for the prolongation of life. Their exact nature, however, still remains a mystery, though much has been discovered concerning their effect on the human system and the general benefits conferred by them. For instance, experiments have proved that animals can live indefinitely on a diet of milk alone. But supply all the constituents of milk separately—proteins, carbohydrates, fats and salts, in fact, all the known food elements—and the animal wastes away and finally dies.

Several theories are held in regard to this problem. Some scientists incline to classify vitamines as structural compounds of living tissues, which function along the same lines as the other tissues. Others relegate them to the "catalysts," those strange substances which have been aptly defined as "chemical parsons," as they accomplish the chemical union of various substances without being themselves affected. Many think that they are derived originally from plants, and one well-known scientist states that they are always present in natural foodstuffs instinctively consumed by men and animals.

Three Types of Vitamine. At the present time, three types of vitamines are known to exist: The water-soluble variety, found in milk, yeast, and other substances; the fat-soluble ones, which are present in butter and egg yolks; and a third class, designated as "antiscorbutic," which is found in a number of fresh vegetables and fruits and also in the outside husk of rice. Lack of these necessary food constituents results in various ills—scurvy, beri-beri, and other diseases.

In fact, the importance of the antiscorbutic factor was discovered purely accidentally, as a result of an epidemic of beri-beri among the rice-eating Eastern nations after modern milling methods obtained in these countries and the surface layer of the rice was removed. When an extract of this husk was eventually supplied, the disease was prevented.

Lack of both the other types of vitamine result in a gradual wasting away. This, in the case of the fat-soluble vitamine, is accompanied by blindness and often by lung trouble, but the wasting process is more gradual, as the system subsists for a while on its reserve store of fat.

JAP'S DAUGHTER DENIED PLEA

Withdraws Application for Citizenship After United States Agent's Protest.

New York.—Miss Phyllis Mori Komori, an art student of White Plains, N. Y., whose application for citizenship was held up some time ago by Justice J. Addison Young of the Supreme court because her father was a Japanese, although her mother is an American by birth, withdrew her application when a federal agent appeared before the jurist and announced the government would not permit a person of Japanese origin to be naturalized.

The case of Miss Komori, who was graduated from the White Plains high school two years ago with high honors, has attracted wide attention in Westchester county. Her mother is a public school teacher in this city. Her father is now in Japan, where he has been since she was one year old, when he abandoned her mother in London.

PUT FIGHTING QUALITIES IN YOUR BLOOD

If You Are Pale and Weak, Without Ambition, You Need a Tonic

TRY TAKING PEPTO-MANGAN

Rich, Red Blood Fights Off Disease and Keeps You Well and Enables You to Work With Pleasure

Serious sickness often comes when you least suspect. You may feel a little over-tired. You have not been exposed to contagion, yet all of a sudden you are flat on your back and in for a siege of sickness.

Your blood did not have fighting qualities. It was weak and thin. Your vitality and powers of resistance were low.

When you overdo you use up energy. Your blood is driven to do more than it can. It becomes clogged with waste. The waste acts like poison. Disease germs get in your blood and dominate.

Don't let yourself get run down. Take that good tonic, Pepto-Mangan. It makes rich red blood that will resist and rout out disease germs.

Pepto-Mangan is widely and heartily endorsed by physicians. It is effective and easy to take. Comes in either liquid or tablet form. Both have the same effect.

Sold at any drug store. But be sure you get the genuine Pepto-Mangan—"Gude's." Ask for it by the name and be sure the full name, "Gude's Pepto-Mangan," is on the package.—Adv.
